

POSITION DESCRIPTION: ASSOCIATE

Veracity seeks multiple New York-based associates to assist with project scoping and execution, with a goal of clearly conveying complex political and commercial issues to our clients. Senior colleagues will mentor Associates in writing and analysis which are pre-requisites for advancement. The position will involve working on a variety of emerging market regions, including Africa, Latin America, China, India, and Eastern Europe. It requires general knowledge of and interest in international affairs from a political and/or business perspective, drawn from sound academic study or at least two years of relevant experience. Candidates must be comfortable in a dynamic, unpredictable environment and demonstrate a willingness to be challenged. Key responsibilities will include:

- Assisting more senior colleagues in determining the scope of potential projects
- Organizing resources and developing analytical frameworks to ensure thorough project research, analysis, and writing
- Conducting preliminary research into a wide variety of entities and issues in global emerging markets

Position Requirements

The successful candidate will have the following key attributes:

- Exceptional writing and analytical capabilities
- Strong attentiveness to detail
- Ability to multitask, and change focus quickly
- Strong time management skills
- The ability to think “outside the box” and initiate work without direct prompting
- Professional fluency in one or more languages in addition to English
- Demonstrated interest in international issues
